m and t.

t and m.

these two letters have two distinctive connotations to me:

“mt” sounds like “empty”

I have attempted to represent emptiness by rendering the letters as bordered rather than filled.

“tm” stands for “trademark”

I have attempted to represent the implications of trademark by means of proliferation and arrangement, as if by mechanical reproduction.

combining these letters means exploring their aesthetic qualities and potentials, how they compliment and contrast.

combining these connotations means confronting the emptiness of capitalism and consumer culture.
